The 7th annual Real Estate Weekly Women's Forum drew a diverse crowd to the Bar Building on West 44th Street this morning to hear from some of the real estate industry's most accomplished female leaders. The 2018 theme is "Make Your Voice Heard," an anthem that was championed by a lineup of speakers unparalleled in their leadership, drive and determination to succeed in one of the most challenging environments in the working world.

Wendy Silverstein, President and CEO, New York REIT, delivered a keynote address. A panel of millennial managers discussed how their generation is changing the way real estate does business and, a group of experts debated the Amazon effect on the real estate market.

During a morning networking event, the forum also offered a peerless networking environment for executives from premier companies across the country focused on growing their business.
